CONTRACTS FROM LARSA
DATED IN THE REIGN OF RÎM-SIN

INTRODUCTION

The one hundred and seventy-six texts of the Yale Babylonian Collection which are published in this volume are taken from a large group of tablets which probably came from Senkereh, the ancient city of Larsa. Some of these texts have been privately published by Professor Elihu Grant in Babylonian Business Documents of the Classical Period, Philadelphia, 1919. They now appear in the Yale Oriental Series, Babylonian Texts, in the present volume. The Yale collection of tablets from Larsa covers a wide range of activities and extends over most of the period of the Larsa Dynasty that synchronizes with the First Dynasty of Babylon. The texts presented in this volume are from the reign of Rim-Sin, with the exception of three that are from the period of Rim-Sin II. As a whole the texts are well preserved and the script is clear and distinct. Many contain seal impressions that are valuable for the study of the contents of the documents on which they are impressed.

These texts are typical of the business and legal documents that were current in Babylonia during this period. They comprise family records of adoption, gifts, dowry, guardianship, and inheritance. They include contracts of various types which show that the economic life of Larsa was predominantly agricultural.

An interesting group of documents deals with the giving of individuals for security for loans, with the sale of individuals, sometimes by themselves, presumably in payment for debt, and with the letting out under heavy bond, of the individuals thus obtained, for their maintenance. These documents give an insight into the economic and social position of the common people in a capitalistic agricultural society. They show the applications of sections 114-117 of the Code of Hammurabi. There are also among these texts several interesting legal decisions which show that the legal principles that were later incorporated in the Code of Hammurabi were already in use in Larsa prior to the conquest of that city by Hammurabi, for example, Nos. 53, and 106.

One group of texts, 108, 112, 114, 115, 121, and 122, dated in the thirty-second year of Rim-Sin, contains, in addition to the regular formula for the year, the expression, šà mu ki 18 or šà mu ki 19. These documents are all palace records. They are discussed by Clay in MI, pp. 38, 39, and by Grice in Chron., pp. 11, 12. The publication of the texts now makes them available for further study for any light they may throw on the question of the chronology of Larsa and Isin.

Another problem of chronology is that of the designation of the months, especially in the thirty-second year of Rim-Sin. Texts 59, 62, 100, 104, 111, 112, 114, 117, 119, 122, and 127, mostly palace records, contain designations for the months that vary from the usual system. Figulla, VS, XIII, 62, 64, 66, 67, Jean, CL, 79, 80, 84, 85, and Chiera, UMBS, VIII, 45, 56, 57, 61, 66, 68, 70, 78 have published texts showing a similar variation from the usual naming of the month. Texts 92, 103, 106, and 123 show that Rîm-Sin intercalated months during his thirty-second year. It would seem that the Larsa calendar was disturbed after the conquest of Isin and that it took some time to adjust it.

CONTRACTS FROM LARSA

The most prominent name in this group of texts is that of Balmunamhe. It appears on fifty-six different texts in this volume. The name is already well-known, as Balmunamhe is listed as a principal in texts published as follows: Grice, RUL (see list of personal names), twenty-five times; Jean, CL, 47, 54; Grant, AJSL, XXXIV, pp. 199 ff.; Langdon, Babyl., VII, p. 47. The name also appears as a principal in unpublished texts, YBC 5724, 6994, and 7027, dated in the reign of Warad-Sin, and in YBC 6756, dated in the reign of Hammurabi. It appears in letters: Lutz, EBL, 13, 77, 96; Dossin, TCL, Vol. 17, No. 67; and Vol. 18, No. 119, and unpublished, NBC 5287. The name appears as a witness, and in the expression, 'sons of Balmunamhe,' in two texts dated in the reign of Samsu-iluna, unpublished, YBC 5830 and 6319. It would seem that all of these references involve the same man. If this is true, we have come into the possession of a rather complete set of documents from the private archives of a citizen of Larsa whose activities extend over a long period of years.

Balmunamhe is mentioned in connection with his father, ^a*Sin-nu-úr-ma-tim*, who was evidently an official under Warad-Sin, the king. He possessed a large estate, manor, or village, uru^{ki}-^aSin-nu-úr-ma-tim. Balmunamhe also possessed an estate, Grice, RUL, 181, and text, 42. A village, uru^{ki}-Bal-mu-nam-he, text 173, bears his name. The name Balmunamhe appears in connection with the word gîr, showing that he held an official position in the city. From text 64:16, and YBC 6319:2, we learn the names of two of his sons, Munawirum and Bala. His seal, impressed on a document dated in the fifty-ninth year of Rim-Sin, text 71, reads as follows: Bal-mu-nam-he, son of ^a*Sin-nu-úr-ma-tim*, servant of Warad-Sin. The letters addressed to Balmunamhe show that he was a prominent man in the city, holding an official position. From these references we get an insight into the life of a prosperous gentleman of the time. His business contracts listed in this volume contain: eight purchases of real estate, two receipts of produce, two exchanges of real estate, five loans, one lease of a boat, three legal decisions, seven purchases of slaves, and twenty-four bonds for slaves let out to neighbors.

I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to the late Professor Raymond P. Dougherty and to the late Dr. E. M. Grice for their guidance in my early work on the material included in this volume. To Professor Albrecht Goetze I am grateful for reading the manuscript and for many valuable suggestions which he has made as the work progressed. I especially wish to thank the Curator of the Babylonian Collection, Professor Ferris J. Stephens, for supervising the preparation of this volume.

CATALOGUE

REGISTER AND DESCRIPTION OF THE TEXTS

All dates are listed according to the enumeration of Grice, Chron., and Thureau-Dangin, La Chronologie des Dynasties de Sumer et d'Accad. This enumeration varies from that given in the article, "Datenlisten," in Reallexikon der Assyriologie, by one year for all formulae after the fourth year. This variation is due to the fact that the author of the article assumes that there are date formulae for only sixty years in the reign of Rim-Sin.

CASE E

- The image contains four separate hand-drawn technical sketches, labeled 1 through 4, arranged vertically. Sketch 1 at the top shows a cross-section of a complex assembly with many small parts. Sketch 2 below it shows a similar assembly from a different angle. Sketch 3 further down shows another view of the internal mechanism. Sketch 4 at the bottom shows a long, narrow component with a serrated edge and some internal features. All sketches are done in black ink on white paper.

TABLET

This image shows a handwritten Chinese calligraphy practice sheet. It consists of four horizontal rows of characters, each row containing four distinct characters. The characters are written in a cursive or semi-cursive style, likely in the 'caoshu' (cursive script) or 'caoshu-like' style. The strokes are fluid and expressive. The characters are arranged in a grid pattern, with each character occupying approximately one-third of a horizontal line. The overall layout is organized and systematic, designed for practicing the form and flow of Chinese characters.

The illustration depicts a woody stem with several pairs of serrated leaves. At the top of the stem is a cluster of flowers, some fully open and others in bud. The drawing is annotated with three numbers: '15' at the top left, '20' in the middle left, and '25' at the bottom left. Below the main stem, there is a separate, smaller drawing of a single flower, also labeled with '25'.

- The image displays four rows of ancient Chinese characters, likely from the Shang or Zhou dynasties, arranged in two columns. Row L contains ten characters, Row R contains nine, Row 5 contains eight, and Row O contains seven. Each character is formed by vertical strokes and small diagonal or horizontal dashes, representing a specific phonetic or semantic element of the language at that time.
